WHY: CIRM is conducting a bidding process to determine the location of its permanent headquarters. It has asked local governments, working in partnership with building owners, to provide 17,000 square feet of office space at little or no cost. This will minimize the institute's overhead, allowing more state funds to go to stem cell research. An evaluation team of CIRM and DGS staff members reviewed proposals submitted by the March 16 deadline to decide whether they fully met the minimum requirements in the CIRM request for proposal (RFP). On April 13, the Site Search Subcommittee accepted the bids from Emeryville, Sacramento, San Diego, and San Francisco. Each of the finalists will give a tour of their facilities to the Subcommittee members, the public and the media from Friday, April 29- Sunday, May1. The Subcommittee will then consider making their first and second choice recommendations on May 2 to put forward before the ICOC on May 6.

Note to Media: Some members of the Site Search Subcommittee may be available for comment following the meeting.
